Ms. Tracy Richardson explained that Anderson-Oconee-Pickens Mental Health Center is a facility of the South Carolina Department of Mental Health. Ms. Richardson is the Community Services Manager at the AOP facility. Other staff includes therapists, social workers, nurses, rehabilitation counselors, and psychiatrists. Staff members aim to treat illness and addictions in both individual and group settings, as well as through home visits.

Ms. Richardson manages the IPS Program, located in Anderson County, which is a program that works in collaboration with Vocational Rehabilitation to assist patients with reaching employment goals. There are currently 38 patients in the IPS program, of which 28 are competitively employed. Ms. Richardson and staff work with community entities to find jobs and community resources for individuals in the program.

Ms. Richardson reviewed the following potential indicators for mental illness: unkempt hygiene, speaking to oneself, long pauses before speaking, family history of mental illness, showing agitation by pacing or fidgeting, clenched fists, and paranoia. When interacting with a potentially ill person, Ms. Richardson suggested staying an arm's length away and asking permission before making movements. Individuals who may qualify for services can be referred to the AOP Mental Health Center, or call for an initial screening appointment.
